Hard look taken at schools

By JIM CARRAVALLAH
Of The Roman Staff

The high-powered citizen's study task force, appointed by the Romulus Board of Education to determine how much millage will be needed to operate the district next year, is beginning to rank school buildings in the district with a possible eye toward closing some.

According to Lynn Slaughter, the chairman of the 20-person citizen's study committee which is to issue a preliminary report Friday on its progress, members are ranking the 11 elementary schools in the district as a step toward evaluating the cost of operating the schools and a possible closing of some to save money.

"We haven't committed ourselves to any course of action," Mrs. Slaughter said. "However, the committee was given four charges by the Board of Education and among them was to determine whether the district needs to operate 11 elementary schools and two junior high schools next year."

Mrs. Slaughter added that the committee's study was formed out of an open admission by the Board of Education that some mistakes may have been made four years ago when the district voters agreed to finance bonds for the construction of a new junior high school and three new elementary schools.

"In the board's defense, no one anticipated the recession we're into now, or anticipated the lack of growth in the district's population," Mrs. Slaughter said. "So now, there is some concern about how to open all the schools, since it will cost more money to do so."

Among the other charges by the board to the citizen's task force was to draw boundary lines for district schools, research the ability of the district to operate on the present millage and to recommend a course of action in next year's operation.

"It's almost taken for granted that there will be a need for millage," Mrs. Slaughter continued. "But the committee is made up of such people that they aren't accepting the need for millage just because the administration says it's needed."

"Instead, they're asking some tough questions and getting answers."

Committee members consist of representatives of unions within the district, district administrators and citizens from the community.

"I selected active members from the PTA Area Council and local schools' parent-teacher organizations," Mrs. Slaughter said. "These aren't the type of people who follow unquestioningly, because they've been active and attempt to stay on top of the affairs of the district."

"I have nothing but praise for the board and the school administration for their cooperation and openness with the committee."

"They're working hard to help this committee meet its task."

Mrs. Slaughter added that schools in the district are being evaluated for their efficiency as facilities by taking into consideration the cost of operating the facility on a per-student basis and considering the building's size and ability to offer a number of services.

"We've rated all 11 elementary schools," Mrs. Slaughter said. "But the results won't be released yet, because new information is coming in each week."

A final committee report will be ready Feb. 20.

Bicentennial artwork improves production

By JIM CARRAVALLAH
Of The Roman Staff

The trend in production facilities is for workers to seek control over their work conditions in an effort to achieve more "job fulfillment."

And while that search traditionally has been handled by a labor organization, a grass roots movement at the Kelsey-Hayes manufacturing plant in Romulus has achieved the same result without any labor union "grief" for the plant's managers.

Local elected officials and a delegation from the Romulus Bicentennial Commission were given a special tour of the facility by plant manager E.C. Smith as an effort by the plant manager to "show how proud we are of our employees" for a spontaneous U.S. Bicentennial decoration campaign along the assembly line.

Smith said employees began painting their machinery along the Bicentennial theme last September after a lone repairman took it upon himself to spruce up his tool box in red, white and blue.

"At first, the supervisors were concerned, and the union questioned whether the practice, which the employees were picking up, was eroded union work," Smith said. "But in the end, both the managers and the union agreed to let the practice continue until July 1."

The sprucing up project resulted in what amounted to a "pride in work" movement by employees as they accepted paint from the company to improve the looks of their machinery.

American eagles, bicentennial stars and hand-lettered plaques crowded the employees' pride in their nation.

And while the pride in their nation increased, so too did their productivity.

According to Smith, production in the plant rose by 25 percent during the four months the practice has continued, and the plant manager said he has seen a drop in absence reports, labor union grievances and a general improvement of employee attitude toward his work.

"We've been real pleased with the results," Smith added. "My only regret is that the practice will end July 1, when the Bicentennial celebration is to end."

Officials including Mayor James C. Stewart, Clerk Leonard Folmar, Treasurer John B. Lewkowicz and Council members Fred Junior Block, Joan A. Lee, Beverly McAnally and

William Oakley toured the facility at the request of Smith.

"We wanted the employees to know just how proud we are of their work," Smith said. "We could find no better way than to show off the plant to the local elected officials and citizens."

"My only problem is to come up with a program for next year."

"This has been so good for the employees and the plant I'd like to continue it."

Earthquake shakes west Wayne County

There's no need to begin strengthening foundations, but residents of the area can say "we've been through" an earthquake.

The New Boston area of Wayne County was shaken ever so slightly at 4:15 p.m. Monday by an earthquake of a magnitude of 3.25, according to Steve Henry, a graduate student at the University of Michigan geology department.

"People living over the epicenter of the quake may have felt it," Henry said. "But there was no damage, and there will be nothing to look for in the area."

of excited
here...'

The quake, which is similar to almost daily occurrences along California's San Andreas fault, is the first one recorded in the area in almost 30 years.

"We're kind of excited here because we're always monitoring tremors in Japan and California, but nothing nearby," Henry said. "We're waiting for information now to determine where the exact center is."

Henry said the activity is nothing to worry about for residents of the area and added that it is not a harbinger of things to come.

"One tremor in 30 years is hardly anything to be concerned about," he added. "There have been similar tremors in the Michigan area over the years, but it has been only four in the past 100 years or more."

A quake was recorded near Greenfield Village in 1877, and another was recorded near the Lake Erie shore, according to Henry.

The exact center of the quake will be determined by gathering information from several monitoring stations in the Michigan, Ohio and Ontario, according to Henry. The epicenter — the location on ground just above where the quake occurred — will be known within the week.

However, the student said teams will not be sent to inspect the area because there will be no visible sign of any activity.

One benefit of the shaking, however, will be to put the New Boston area on the map for some far-away places. Henry estimates that a quake of 3.25 magnitude could be recorded on the east coast of the United States.

On the inside

One member of the Peoples Community Hospital Authority has leveled seven charges against the organization, and residents 55 years of age and older now have a recreation program geared for them. That's only part of the news on the inside.

Bicentennial observance

Fashion show reviews first 100 years

By LEESMITH
Suburban Living Editor

The night of Jan. 30 not only was a night of entertainment but a time to reflect and learn a bit about our nation's past. The Van Buren Bicentennial Committee chose the late January date to compliment the state of Michigan's 139th birthday along with the nation's 200th as it presented "Fashions of the Past" at the Van Buren Township Hall.

Selecting the first 100 years of our country's existence, the committee's nod to the 1776-1876 era brought response from local seamstresses who whipped up creations typical of that time period as well as from residents with heirloom clothing to show.

Helping set the mood for the trip back into history was a spinning wheel demonstration by Kay Massingill of Ypsilanti. Authentic original clothing, too old to be worn, was submitted by Betty Hankins and displayed on dress forms before the stage.

Getting the show off to a lively and spirited start was Laurie McPherson, a member of "Poor Richard's Americans" (PRA), who entertained by singing several songs from early America and accompanying herself on both the guitar and banjo.

Wearing a gown reminiscent of the ante bellum years, Miss McPherson demonstrated the "proper" way (technique) for a lady to sit when wearing a hoop; her enactment of the "improper" method bringing chuckles from the audience.

A University of Michigan music and voice graduate, the singer currently gives private voice and guitar lessons and also works as a strolling minstrel at Greenfield Village. Her portrayals (other than the southern belle) for her affiliation with PRA include the characters of Annie Oakley, Nellie Bly, Jane Adams and Susan B. Anthony.

After opening the show, Miss McPherson provided background music to fit each costume as it was modeled.

Dolly Madison herself (show chairman Mary Ann Bassett in-cognito) narrated the show in a lace-trimmed gown from the 1800's which she had made complete with draw-string bustle. Mrs. Bassett's disguise included a long-curved wig styled especially for the program by Jerry's Foxy Lady of Belleville.

To the tune of "There is a Tavern in the Town," three pretty tavern maids, Pam Carnahan, Sandy Porzondek and Tammy Cullin, took to the stage in lavender and white gingham aprons and mopecaps made by the former's mother, Shirley Carnahan. They were worn with deep purple dresses and were a facsimile of the typical maid's uniform from the past.

Shirley Carnahan in a 2-piece outfit made by her sister-in-law, Jo Ann Carnahan of Belleville, played the role of the schoolmarm of years gone by. The blue, small print fabric was worked into tiny pleats on the bodice and again on the skirt front with the popular brooch of the era pinned at the white collar.

The early homemaker, circa 1780, was Sally Jones who represented the Home Arts Club of Belleville. The red calico gown she had made to wear at her own Thanksgiving Day dinner was accented by a white apron, fichu (small neck scarf) and popular dustcap. On her scarf, Mrs. Jones wore a genuine cameo which belonged to her grandmother.

It had been explained earlier in the program that the mopecap or dustcap as it also was known had two purposes. The first was to keep the housewife's hair clean and free from

2nd civil service hearing to be held Monday

A second public hearing will be held to hear alleged inequities of the Wayne County Civil Service System at the Wayne County General Hospital Monday.

County Commissioner Arthur M. Carter (D-Detroit) and his 7-member investigating committee heard Wayne County civil service workers and union officials register complaints that ranged from unfair examinations, lack of opportunity for promotion and sexism to the placement of non-civil service personnel brought in to fill county jobs.

Robert Johnson, president-director of Council 23 of the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) spoke at a Jan. 23 hearing at the City-County Building, Detroit.

Claiming to represent 6,000 employees of Wayne County, Johnson called the system "totally inadequate." He said that employees should be given preference for promotions on a basis of seniority.

He testified that there are employees at Wayne County General Hospital who have been there for five or six years and never had been given the opportunity to take a promotional exam.

Johnson called for the reevaluation of the whole exam system, oral and written, calling it unfair and time consuming. He said there is evidence of patronage at the entrance level and said that job descriptions have been written to suit certain individuals. He termed the practice of giving extra exam points to those who are veterans or disabled, unrealistic.

Eugene S. Guido, president of AFL-CIO Local 1659 suggested the whole Civil Service System as we know it today be eliminated. He charged it with being antiquated, filled with inequities, and having an inconsistent, vague method of operating.

A female Wayne County employee charged sex discrimination in not being given the opportunity to operate a multi-lith machine, which is a job that falls into her employment classification. She reportedly was told it was "a man's job."

Present at the hearing were, in addition to Chairman Carter, five other Wayne County Commissioners serving on the investigating board: Royce E. Smith of Belleville, vice chairman; and Clemens E. Bykowski, Jackie L. Currie, Robert D. Mahoney, and Rose Mary Robinson, all of Detroit.

Wayne County Auditor Leonard D. Proctor, representing the County Hospital Governing Board, the Board of County Institutions, was present as the seventh member of the committee.

Robert Wickle, speaking at the request of the Wayne County Supervisory Employees Association, said: "We support the merit system principles. However, Civil Service is running on three flat tires."

"The first is insufficient number of staff members to carry on the personnel functions of Civil Service," he added. "The second is inadequate resources to respond satisfactorily to position classification requests, and thirdly, there is insufficient attention and support for employee training and development."

Carter said testimony will be received by the investigating board for a period of 90 days. Hearings will be held at various sites throughout the county so that citizens may come forth with their grievances and present them either orally or in writing.

"Everyone who wishes to be heard will have the opportunity," Carter added. "When the hearings are concluded, the committee will study all material presented and make its report.

"We intend to go before the State Legislature with specific recommendations for major changes in the Wayne County Civil Service System. Some of our recommendations undoubtedly will call for changes in the state law."

Member levels 7 charges against PCHA

By MAUREEN RADEMACHER
Of The Enterprise-Roman Staff

A list of seven charges, levelled against the Peoples Community Hospital Authority (PCHA) by one of its own member communities, will be answered in letter form by the president of the Board of Directors and PCHA executive director, the board members last night decided at their regular monthly meeting.

The charges, or "questions" as Board President Donald J. Pizzimenti called them, were brought up by the Dearborn Heights City Council in a letter sent to the other 22 member communities and made public in an article in a Dearborn Heights newspaper.

Although Pizzimenti wanted to

Klicka particularly was upset by the charge that he had authorized spending money without authority.

discuss the "questions" in detail with the board last night, a lengthy discussion was bypassed in favor of a resolution instructing he and PCHA executive Director Karl Klicka compose a letter, answering each charge.

The hospital authority is the composite organization, operating four hospitals in the Detroit suburban area, including Ann Arbor in Wayne, Beyer Memorial in Ypsilanti, Seaway in Trenton and Outer Drive Hospital in Lincoln Park. The four hospitals serve a 23-community area that includes Wayne, Westland, Inkster, Garden City and Romulus.

The issues raised by the Dearborn Heights Council President ranged from a complaint about a hike in attorney fees, paid by the PCHA board to its legal counsel to a charge that Klicka had overstepped his authority by approving a construction change order for $70,000 without board approval.

Although the board decided not to discuss the individual "questions" at the end of its late-hour meeting last night, the two issues mentioned above were addressed by Pizzimenti and Klicka before the board members cut off discussion.

Klicka particularly was upset by the charge that he had authorized spending money without authority. The matter concerned a change order in a construction contract.

He and Pizzimenti said the situation came up during the summer months, when the full board does not meet. The executive board, composed of three individuals including President Pizzimenti, meet during that time to make decisions, all of which are subject to board approval.

But in the particular case cited by the Dearborn Heights Council, it was the Planning and Construction Committee that met and recommended that the change order be approved.

The charge was that Klicka signed the order, but that it actually was not approved by the executive board until a week later.

PCHA Engineer Dean Armstrong last night, however, noted that the order, signed by Klicka, was a field order, not a change order, and thus not a contract.

In the case of attorney fees, Pizzimenti said it was true the executive board, and later the full Board of Directors, voted to increase the attorney fees, after the legal counsel decided to raise his rates.

"The fact of the matter is, it was reviewed by the board," he added.

"Whether a person agrees with the decision or not, it was done properly." The majority vote decided the issue, meaning that the procedure for deciding could not be questioned, Pizzimenti said.

Although some of the PCHA Board members were willing to discuss all the charges last night, the vote of the board was to leave the answer to the top spokesmen. Since all communities involved in the authority received Dearborn Heights complaint, all will receive the response.

Two of the three members from Dearborn Heights were in attendance during the discussion — Ralph Krajewski and Joseph J. O'Brien. The third, Clarence Constan, left just prior to the issue being raised.

Chided by fellow board members as to why the questions were not raised to the board before being made into a letter to the governments of the member communities, O'Brien said he has asked questions, but not always had been satisfied with the answers he received.

The other issues presented included:

—A complaint that although the legal counsel is required, by board resolution, to produce an itemized list of services rendered with a bill, this is not done.

—The council's fear that the PCHA administration was going to recommend dropping the 20 percent surcharge charged to hospital users who are not residents of PCHA communities. The administration has submitted a report on the surcharge. It is being studied, but no action is being taken on it by the board.

—A charge that a portion of the recent $10 room rate increase is being used for a "malpractice suit fund."

—A complaint on the procedure allowing the 3-man executive board to make decisions when the full Board of Directors doesn't have enough members present for a quorum, or in between meetings, subject to eventual fund board approval.

—The charge that purchased services in the PCHA operations are not bid competitively on to reduce cost. Pizzimenti told the Dearborn addressed to the board, we are obligated to respond to," he added that their manner of bringing up the charges was going to call disproportionate publicity to the matter which could have been settled without the adverse publicity.

Klicka added that "things of this sort generate suspicion," and said he was concerned about the reaction the board would get from the community. He said he was personally "very offended" by the charges.

Local bandsmen receive 8 awards

Students in the Romulus Community School District band programs came away with eight "first division" awards during the recent Michigan School Bands and Orchestra Association competition.

Winning honors during the weekend competition were Joe Rusan, Sherry Henderson, Linda McDonald, Bridget Fortinos, Loretta Vickerman, Carol Schneider and Andy Orgovan.

Miss McDonald was a double winner, taking first-division awards in both the solo and duet competition.

Fifteen other students of the 35 who attended won a second-division award.

Students participating in the program were awarded first through fifth division ratings with a fifth division rating the poorest.

Correction

The Belleville Enterprise erroneously reported last week that the Michigan School Bus Service still is the operator of the Van Buren School District's bus program and that Evelyn Oltersdorf was a supervisor with the Michigan School Bus Service.

Following a court ruling last summer, the Van Buren School District bus program was taken over by the school district's management, and Mrs. Oltersdorf was employed by the school district to handle the busing program.

The Michigan School Bus Service, which operated the program from 1973 until last summer, is leasing its vehicles to the district and is offering maintenance help only.

Cardiac patients are fortunate

By RUSSELL J. TUTTLE
Director of Community Relations
Peoples Community Hospital Authority

And of great significance is the fact that the provision of this service represents one more important step in what is the ultimate goal of medicine...

Donna Levy (a pseudonym) had just finished her morning housework chores. She walked into the kitchen, poured a cup of fresh coffee, and sat down at the table to enjoy a few moments of relaxation before starting to prepare lunch for her two children who shortly would be home from school.

She had been up and down the stairs several times, made the beds, smoked nine cigarettes, vacuumed, dusted and put everything into its proper place. In short, it had been a typical Monday morning.

Now, as she sat at the kitchen table arranging in her mind the tasks for the afternoon, she lighted another cigarette. She felt a slight discomfort under her sternum (breastbone). Two deep inhalations of the cigarette later, the discomfort became more pronounced and was accompanied by a pain in the inside of her left arm.

She pondered over the meaning of these physical phenomena, and then made a wise decision. Rather than engage in the danger of self diagnosis — which is often self delusion — she extinguished the cigarette, composed herself and then called her family physician to report what she had experienced.

Even though the discomfort was now abated, she was asked to come into the doctor's office for an examination.

Her doctor, a staff physician at Annapolis Hospital, ran an EKG (Electro-cardiogram) test. His reading of the EKG printout convinced him that Mrs. Levy's symptoms required additional, specialized observation.

A telephone call was made to the Cardio Diagnostic Department of Annapolis Hospital. Florine Jennin, RN, took the call and arranged for an immediate appointment for Mrs. Levy to undergo testing on the cardiac stress testing equipment provided at Annapolis.

The Cardio Diagnostic Department is under the supervision of Omar Guevara, MD, who is assisted by V. Goburdhan, MD. Both of these physicians are cardiologists.

The following morning, Mrs. Levy presented herself to the stress testing area.

Her vital signs were taken, and then she was given a "resting" EKG. This EKG would be read by the physicians to be certain that she had not suffered a previous myocardial infarction (MI). It also would be used as a reference check to be compared with the EKG taken on the stress tester.

The stress tester is a treadmill device which can be operated at varying speeds (up to 10 miles per hour) and varying angles of difficulty (up to 20 degrees from the horizontal).

As Mrs. Levy stood on the treadmill, she was attached via electrodes to a real-time oscilloscope which would present an electronic "picture" of the stress her heart was experiencing.

At the conclusion of the stress testing, she was allowed to sit down and recover from the exercise.

She then was provided with a second piece of new equipment: the Holter carrier.

The Holter is a small (about 4 lbs.) tape recorder which she would carry over her shoulder much like she would carry her purse. Electrodes from the Holter were attached to her body, and a tape in the Holter would record a 24-hour EKG. At night when she went to bed, she would put the recorder under her pillow and thus any phenomena which occurred during sleep time would be recorded.

Mrs. Levy was instructed to bring the recorder back to Annapolis the following day. The tape was then removed and placed in an electronic scanner which has the ability to translate the impressions on the tape to a visual EKG readout.

As her tape was being played out on the scanner, the readout could be stopped at any point which the physician considered to represent a deviation from normal limits and an analysis could be made.

This service has been in operation since December 1974. In those 13 months, more than 500 patients have been tested.

These patients are fortunate that the service is available, in that the cost of getting a 24-hour EKG with the Holter is considerably less than it would be if a patient had to be hospitalized for the same procedure. Additionally, by taking the 24-hour reading with the portable Holter, it is possible to get a typical reading as one exists in a normal environment.

Both the treadmill stress and Holter services are available to patients from other hospitals in the area. The only requirement is that the tests be ordered by a physician.

And of great significance is the fact that the provision of this service represents one more important step in what is the ultimate goal of medicine — the prevention of physical distress.

'Saving?'

By Orval Sumner

We're told to save on energy,
Go easy on the fuel.
Don't drive unless you have to,
Let the children walk to school.

Go easy on the oil too,
Well, I can remedy that.
I'll put a hot water bottle
Upon my THERMOSTAT!

To the editor: Just thinking of a way to help.

'A Neighbor with a Heart'

By Marge Laverty

Carman, I want the world to know that to me you mean so much.
The kindness that you always show
And your protective touch.

Carman, this comes from the heart
You've been a friend so true.
Ya built me up right from the start
And I want to say it to you.

When both parents I did keep
Oh how they got me down.
Over at your house I would reap
The courage to go on.

Then our son he passed away
Again to you I run.
I had to hear the words you'd say
Before I could go on.

Carman, never lose your ways
And that protective touch.
It means the world to me I'll say
To have a friend I trust.

Carman, if I've troubled times
You know I'll run your way.
I know you're one that doesn't mind
What good old Marge will say.

I hope your wishes all come true
And things go just your way.
Shucks, I want the best for you
What more can Marge say.

To the editor: This poem was written about Carman Atchley of Harris Road in Belleville. And she makes a neighbor that's out of this world. God bless you, Carman, and your family.

Marcher appreciates help in Romulus

To the editor: As an area captain for this year's Mothers' March, I would like to express my appreciation to the 14 volunteers who braved snow, ice and freezing weather collecting more than $200 in the fight against birth defects. And to the warm Romulus residents who so generously responded to this year's March of Dimes appeal, an added thank you for caring.

Spelling problem?

To the editor: Our present socially acceptable spelling is unteachable, mind-stunting, handicapping and deceiving. It stifles common sense, blocks reading, represses literacy, creates delinquents and squanders energy.

It impedes typing, prevents alphabet voice printing, causes mispronunciation and retards learning.

The 40 sounds in English have more than 500 different spellings. Each vowel sound has an average of 18 different spellings. English spelling is malignant, lawless, erratic, mal-envolved, pseudo-historical, antiquated and laborious.

You are invited to join the efforts to revise the current conventional spelling with sound spelling.

dust (they hardly were able to shampoo as frequently as we do today) and to keep her head warm at night since central heating would have been "Greek."

Eight-year old Shari Ferguson stepped out of the past to illustrate what the younger set wore when invited to something special. The little blue frock, made by her grandmother, Verdys Shephard, had a V-neckline and three-quarter sleeves and a little matching hat set atop her curls.

Labeled on the program as "the smallest gem," 4-year old Martha Horstewas the wee tot in the cast. She represented the Rocky Mountain boom state of Colorado in a gown copied from a photograph of Silver Dollar Tabor, the daughter of the Governor of Colorado. The dress in a patchwork pattern was made by Imogene Pence. Martha's grandmother, Ruth Beard of Boone, N.C., fashioned her little bonnet.

Another early homemaker who might well have made her dress especially for "church goin'" was Berna Wertz. Her natural muslin gown was complete with a brown overskirt and jaunty little hat in matching fabric. The audience was also allowed a peek at the pantaloons and petticoat she wore underneath. The heirloom items had once been worn by the grandmother of Belleville resident, Judy Fruit.

Patrons weren't seeing double when Jill Pence and Tina Cicotte, both 9-year olds, appeared in matching yellow calico frocks and bonnets typical of frontier children. In fact, they were similar to the garb worn by the Ingalls girls on the television show, "Little House on the Prairie." You could almost visualize them crossing the country in a covered wagon. Again the seamstress for the pair was Imogene Pence.

Eleven-year-old Patti Bassett held a little nosegay of daisies and looked very much like a young lady on her way to a party. Her pink and white gingham dress covered a long, lace-trimmed petticoat which her mother, the chairman of the show, had made along with the dress.

The first of the authentic originals to be shown was worn by Onnalee Wall whose black alpaca outfit had belonged to her grandmother, Clarissa Rawson Miller, who was born in 1803. Research shows that in the 1800's she moved with her husband, Horace, to a spot now known as Huron Township.

The family history also notes a land grant from the government; that same property now being known as the Miller subdivision (North Shore Drive, Stanley and Beck Roads) to the south of Denton Road in Van Buren Township.

Playing the part of hostess at a tea party was Gayle Patterson whose floral printed gown trimmed in ecru crocheted lace was made for her by Sue Phillips.

Changing the mood of the program by moving it to perhaps the "Long Branch" was Debbie Zaborowski. She chose to depict the dance hall girl who, too, played a part in the making of the country. She and a friend, Charlene Cole, designed and made the pink taffeta dress.

In her spare time, it seems, that dance hall girl had been busy with a pair of knitting needles for it was Debbie who put together the striking red, white and blue afghan which was the evening's top door prize.

Representing the Trinity Episcopal Church Women (ECW) was Judy Wilson in a costume made by Fran Bitnar. Chosen from the 1860 era, the turquoise dress featured butterfly sleeves, a stand-up collar and padded bustle back. Reaching into the past for authenticity, Judy also wore high silk shoes in a feminine bone color.

A student at Belleville High School, Pat Fleming donned the long dress for which her mother, Betty Fleming, had used 10 yards of black and white print fabric. Typical of 1876, her frontier costume was patterned after those worn by a "young lady" (teen-ager.)

A former Sumpter resident, Barbara McKenzie, came from her family's centennial farm near Ypsilanti to model an authentic Quaker costume. Having belonged to her great-grandmother, Betsy Hewens, the outfit dates back to around 1876. The all-black ensemble included a small, snug-fitting bonnet in matching heavy wool fabric.

Barbara also brought for display a 33-inch German bisque doll (the forerunner to our life-sized dolls) belonging to the family.

The 1880's were on stage when Debbie Keene of Ypsilanti modeled the black calico dress, pink apron and dustcap which her mother had made. To add interest to her outfit, she carried an antique doll, part of a collection belonging to her mother.

Ring down the curtain was Charlene Cole of Romulus wearing an authentic Indian squaw costume sent to her by her parents in Idaho. Created from genuine doeskin, the dress was heavily decorated with dowrie shells, buffalo bones and heavy wool thongs.

Her ornate leggings, it was explained, were worn to protect the legs from snake and insect bites.

Charlene's father, a great-nephew of Chief Joseph of the Nez Perce Indians, assisted as a technical director for the recent T.V. special on the tribe, "I Will Fight No More Forever."

The show brought to mind the fact that before the sewing machine

(according to one historian), making clothes was the chief occupation of half the human race. Unless very wealthy, wives made by hand all their own garments, their children's and, in addition, all their men's shirts, underwear and work clothes.

Thomas Hood, an English poet, described weary seamstresses everywhere when he wrote in his "Song of the Shirt" — "With finger weary and worn, with eyelids heavy and red; a woman sat in unwomanly rags, plying her needle and thread."

Jill Pence was winner of the hand-knit afghan; Cassie Chudzinski, the Timex wristwatch; Aldine Potter, the Avon Betsy Ross plate; Betty Fleming, the junior miss Singer sewing machine; and Lenore Cicotte, Donna Ferguson and Cleve Luebke, Singer discount coupons.

Mrs. Bassett's show committee was comprised of Phyllis Seaman, Gayle Patterson, Shirley Carnahan and Ed and Cleve Luebke.

Special acknowledgements were given to Marilyn Montgomery, Pat Cullin, Jeff Clark, Edgemont School, Singer Sewing Center at Briarwood, Van Buren Township Hall, Belleville City Hall, Belleville Area Chamber of Commerce, So-Fro Fabrics, Tom Russell, Quirk School first graders, The Enterprise-Roman, The Press, Sherry Rydinsky, Imogene Pence, Alice Porzondek and Robert Brandman.

Costumes from 1776-1876

The brick, glass and stainless steel in the background of this photograph is a marked contrast to the costumes worn by four of Friday night's models in "Fashions of the Past." Their 1776-1876 outfits depicted four different modes of life from this nation's early period. The Indian squaw, Charlene Cole, stands with a tavern maid, Tammy Cullin, and a frontier housewife, Sally Jones. Onnalee Wall (seated) wore an authentic original ensemble once worn by her great-grandmother. The Van Buren Bicentennial Committee sponsored the show at the Van Buren Township Hall where some 19 persons acted as mannequins.

'Dolly' was narrator

Mary Ann Bassett, chairman of the Van Buren Bicentennial Committee's style show, "Fashions of the Past," chose Dolly Madison to emulate as she narrated Friday night's show at the Van Buren Township Hall. Wearing her own creation, a turquoise gown circa 1800, she made the dress complete with a draw string bustle and fancy lace ruffled sleeves. Her dark wig was styled especially for the show by Jerry's Foxy Lady of Belleville.

Quotes worth quoting...

"One of the things that irritates me extremely is the insulting disregard, common in this country, of natural beauty. Piles of old tin cans and rubbish dumped in a beautiful roadside brook, motorcars left to rust in open meadows, fine trees needlessly hacked to make away for eyesore telephone poles, billboards, whatsoever! These are evidences of our lack of civilization."

David Grayson said it in 1936.

'Mother Nature' discusses herbs at Study Club

The Belleville Women's Study Club at its regular monthly meeting Jan. 14 had as guest speaker, Mrs. Stephen Kuchta Sr., who discussed herbs. She described the many kinds that can be grown in our own local gardens and told about the various kinds that grow wild as well as about those that can be purchased from mail order houses or in grocery stores.

She had with her a great many herbs which were passed around for the members to feel and smell. At the same time she explained the use of each herb for food flavoring, aroma and medicinal purposes. Each member also received a little potpourri which Mrs. Kuchta had made up of flower petals and herbs.

With her husband, Stephen, she grows herbs on their Haggerty Road farm and, during the growing season, has many varieties for sale at their booth at the Ann Arbor Farmers Market.

Mrs. Kuchta is appropriately nicknamed "Mother Nature" in the Belleville-Ann Arbor-Wayne County region because of her enthusiasm for natural foods and medications.

Following the entertaining and informative program, the conservation committee served dessert and coffee in the Lemontree clubhouse. Mrs. Rodney Mast was hostess along with Mrs. Jack Paulsen, Mrs. William Hennells and Mrs. Leo Turney.

MUSICAL NOTES

by Doug Brown

Where did the cakewalk come from? The cakewalk appears to have originated in an actual custom of plantation life in antebellum days. Featured in the blackface minstrel shows, it passed over into the variety acts that marked the transition to vaudeville. When the team of Harrigan and Hart presented, in 1877, a number called "Walking for Dot Cake" (music Dave Braham), it was a precursor of the many cakewalk songs that flooded the nation around the turn of the century.

Our selection of pianos and organs are the finest in area, and they're on display at DOUG BROWN MUSIC, 9219 S. Wayne Rd., Romulus. Just about every radio station and TV station uses a Baldwin piano and organ ... Why not have one of your very own? Let us tell you about our four week trial course. Phone 941-8484.

Navy base chapel setting for Balke-Hillmer wedding

MRS. DELMAR D. BALKE

A military wedding in the base chapel at Corry Naval Technical Training Center in Pensacola, Fla. united in marriage Laura Jean Hillmer and Delmar Dean Balke Jr. Both young people are serving with the U.S. Navy. Candlelight set the mood for the 6 p.m. Jan. 17 ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence E. Hillmer of 40320 Willis Road, Belleville. A 1973 graduate of Belleville High School, she was employed at K-Mart's in Lakewood Shopping Center prior to entering the navy last August.

Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Dean Balke Sr. of Staunton, Ill. are parents of the bridegroom.

The gown which the bride made for her wedding featured an illusion neckline with a wedding band collar of tiny ruffles. Lace over saten was used for the bouffant gown which was designed with long sheer sleeves and a tiered skirt.

A small cap studded with beads and seed pearls secured her fingertip veil with a colonial bouquet of white rosebuds, yellow daisies and baby's breath completing her ensemble.

Three couples attended the bridal pair who were later feted at a reception in the Chief's Club at Corry Station. Among the 50 guests attending were the couple's parents. The newlyweds are now making their home at 821 N. 75th Avenue, Pensacola, Fla.

The bridegroom, who has served with the navy for one year, is a graduate of Staunton High School.

Installation is highlight of Romulus Senior Citizens monthly meeting

Installation of officers for the new year was the highlight of the Jan. 27 meeting of the Romulus Senior Citizens Club. No. 1. Held at the VFW Hall, the program was conducted by Lt. Col. Jason Lovette of Romulus, a retired army officer.

Corsages donated by Marie DeBuyssher, recreation director, were worn by the incoming women officers including Celeste Fisher, president; Dorothy LaLonde, secretary; Ceceila Renke, treasurer; Leona Love, membership secretary and Melissa Bell, miscellaneous secretary. Herman McIntosh as vice-president was the lone male in the group.

The newly wed Edward Wallace (she was Alice Pierce), both active members of the club, were serenaded on the violin by Ernie Block who played "Those Wedding Bells are Breaking Up That Old Gang of Mine." Dorothy LaLonde presented the club's top bowlers for the month — Mary Wisniewski and Elsie Robinson coming in first and second in the women's high point division and Bill Wilson and Frank Wisniewski in the men's. The Wisniewskis also copped the high average accolade.

Hostesses for the monthly dinner were Dorothy Icenogle, Marian Guyor and Emily Bloom. Sometime in the next six months the men of the club will have the opportunity to act as hosts for the occasion.

Future activities call for ceramics classes which start Feb. 5 in the Romulus Recreation building. Agnes Croney has also offered to teach crocheting with Dorothy LaLonde giving her a helping hand. On Feb. 25 the group is scheduled to visit and have lunch at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Dearborn and on Mar. 14 they will attend the Ice Capades in Detroit.

No kidding

Kidneys are considered a great delicacy and are served in a variety of gourmet dishes. Pork, lamb and veal kidneys are tender enough to be broiled. Beef kidney, less tender than the others, should be braised or cooked in liquid.

Smith is re-appointed

Wayne County Commissioner Royce E. Smith of Belleville has been re-appointed to a position on the Labor Relations Board of the county's legislative body.

Smith, along with Commissioners Lee E. Flowers of Detroit, Rose Mary C. Robinson of Detroit and Richard Manning of Redford, were re-appointed to the advisory body to the Board of Commissioners for collective bargaining with employee unions.

Witnesses gather for 2-day meeting

The Belleville congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses in cooperation with four other Western Wayne County congregations of the Witnesses convened a symposium recently at the Assembly Hall in Detroit.

The 2-day program covered a variety of topics ranging from family problems solving to proselytizing. The Witnesses have gained a worldwide reputation for their door-to-door evangelizing.

Among those participating in the symposium were four elders from the Belleville congregation. Mitchell P. Ulbrick, a local elder, served as chairman of the Saturday program.

"The high point of the assembly," Updike said, "was the Sunday afternoon discourse by K.R. Huckaby our District Overseer." Some 1,243 attenders, Bibles in hand, heard Huckaby declare, "God's kingdom is a real government with rulers that would exercise authority over Earth from heaven...the objective of the Kingdom is to restore mankind to a fine relationship with God." Owing to the prominence the Witnesses give their belief in the "Kingdom" they term their meeting places "Kingdom Halls." The Belleville "Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses" is located at 45 South Edgemont.

Belleville construction firm awarded I-275 work pact

A Belleville construction firm was the lowest bidder for the construction of 2.7 miles of work in Romulus.

Thompson-McCully Co. of Belleville with a low bid of $2,508,661 of construction of I-275 between Pennsylvania Road and the C and O Railroad, according to the Department of State Highways and Transportation.

The project also included the construction of a separate 8-foot bicycle path and five timber bridges.

The firm also was awarded contracts for the road resurfacing and putting in 3-foot paved shoulders on both sides of US-12 from the south Washtenaw County line near Clinton, to northeast to McCollum Road and the paving of 3-foot shoulders of both sides of US-12 for 10 miles between the Washtenaw County line and Clinton.

Expected completion date of those two projects is June. The low bid submitted was $170,813.

Another local business — the Huron Sod Farms of Romulus — also netted three contracts in Wayne County.

The firm, with a bid of $34,928, will landscape the I-96 I-94 interchange with shrub beds and other plantings in conjunction with the installation of a water sprinkling system as part of a beautification program of I-94 from Detroit Metropolitan Airport in Romulus to Detroit.

Completion date of that project will be June.

The firm also will be landscaping trees and shrubs on both sides of Telegraph Road between Plymouth and Five Mile Roads in Redford Township. The low bid was $28,290. The completion date is May.

Huron Sod also will be landscaping two miles of the Southfield Freeway with trees and shrubs between I-94 and I-75. The low bid was $31,205.

Board of Commissioners for collective bargaining with employee unions.

Serving a first term on the board will be Commissioner Clemens E. Bykowski of Detroit.

In other action at the commissioners' meeting late last month, a new position of medical administrator was established to manage all health services at the county jail.

The new position was one of several moves by the board to comply with a 3-judge Circuit Court panel appointed following the filing of a lawsuit charging that jail conditions violate the inmates' constitutional rights. The suit was filed in 1971.

The board also approved a supplemental budget appropriation to continue funding 25 positions in the Sheriff's Department through at least March 7 when an arbitration decision is expected.

During budget deliberations last year, the board deleted the positions from the jail reception-diagnostic center, and Detroit Metropolitan Airport squad to pare down county spending.

However, the legality of the deletions was challenged in a lawsuit filed by the sheriff's deputies union and a temporary injunction issued by Judge John D. O'Hair, one of the judges serving on the jail panel.

Boat Show has opened at Cobo Hall

The Greater Michigan Boat Show, the largest dealer-owned marine exhibition in the country, has opened to the public at Detroit's Cobo Hall.

This year's show will be larger than ever with more than 700 boats and related marine equipment filling the approximately 7½ acres of "dry water" in the hall, a spokesman said. In addition to a wide variety of boats, motors, and accessories, the exhibits will include educational groups and service organizations.

On display will be merchandise with an estimated value of some $4.5 million, and virtually every item may be purchased through the exhibiting dealers. The largest boat will be the 41-foot Morgan Out Island with center cockpit and sloop-rigged. The smallest will be an 8-foot Sportyak.

As added attractions, there will be entertainment, including Banjo Ron and his Ragtime Rascals. A variety of prizes will be offered.

A number of special clinics, films, and discussions will be conducted throughout the show on a variety of subjects. These presentations will take place daily and will be led by individual exhibitors, the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary and the Law Enforcement Division, Department of Natural Resources. The Sheriff's Marine Divisions of Macomb and Oakland counties will be on hand with displays of crime prevention and marine safety information.

Hours for the boat show are from 4 through 11 p.m. now through Friday, from 12 to 11 p.m. Saturday and from 12 to 9 p.m. Sunday.

General admission tickets are available at the door. Children under 12 years, accompanied by an adult, will be admitted free.

"Inquest" is a combination of quotations from 1950s' contemporaries, actual transcripts from the trial and reconstructions from the home and prison lives of the Rosenbergs.

Major roles in the production will be held by Alanna Hamill (Ethel Rosenberg), Marc L. McCulloch (Julius Rosenberg), Hamid Dana (Emanuel Bloch), Stuart Grant (Irving Saypol), Robert Beaupre (David Greenglass) and Kenneth Wilson (Judge Kaufman).

Great Americans 'star' at museum for Bicentennial

The Great Americans Exhibit, open at Henry Ford Museum, reflects a personal interpretation of our nation's Bicentennial, according to spokesmen. The exhibit, which continues through Feb. 29, highlights the significant contributions of 14 men and women to American industry, science, politics and the humanities over the last 200 years.

Drawing upon the extensive collections of Henry Ford Museum and adjacent Greenfield Village, this exhibit brings together objects associated with noted personalities from all walks of life. Included are John Adams, John James Audubon, Luther Burbank, George Washington Carver, Thomas Edison, Stephen Foster, Benjamin Franklin, Abraham Lincoln, Edgar Allan Poe, Paul Revere, Harriet Beecher Stowe, George Washington, Noah Webster and Eli Whitney.

The careers of these eminent Americans are traced in the exhibit using both 2- and 3-dimensional objects. Each is represented by a portrait or photograph and something in his or her own hand. Letters written by such famous Americans as Washington, Adams, Franklin and Lincoln are among the items on display.

Highlighting the exhibit are objects from the collections which represent the contributions that made these Americans great. A silver teapot and an original engraving demonstrate both Paul Revere's craftsmanship and political learnings, for example. Composer Stephen Foster is represented by a guitar and a musical score written in his own hand, Noah Webster by a first edition of his dictionary and Harriet Beecher Stowe by an 1852 edition of her controversial book, "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Other items in the exhibit include Luther Burbank's tools, a traveling beverage set once used by John Adams, engravings by John James Audubon, Edgar Allan Poe's writing desk and agricultural pamphlets written by George Washington Carver. A short biographical sketch for each of the 14 featured individuals provides a background glimpse into their lives and work as well as their contributions to American progress and ingenuity. The Great Americans Exhibit is displayed in the Henry Ford Museum's Special Exhibit Area near the Street of Early American Shops. There is no additional charge for this exhibit beyond the regular museum admission.

Tar/Taste Theory Exploded.

New 9 mg. tar MERIT with 'Enriched Flavor' proves taste no longer depends on amount of tar.

Until now, cigarette flavor pretty much depended on the amount of tar that went along with it.

Regardless of "low tar, good taste" claims, regardless of fancy filters and "space-age" filtering systems—you couldn't get high taste without high tar.

Nor low tar without low taste.

That was the theory.

Until now.

This is another report on MERIT from Philip Morris.

If you smoke, you'll be interested.

Low Tar, Good Taste: Filters Fall Short

At first, we tried designing special filters, too. Like others, our results were generally disappointing.

These results confirmed a belief that if there was any way to get flavor—real flavor—into a low tar cigarette, the answer had to lie somewhere in the tobacco itself.

So we focused on the business end of smoking. The tobacco end. And decided if we wanted to get more flavor through to you, we'd just have to start with more.

After a twelve year effort, our Richmond Research Center succeeded. They isolated the "key" flavor ingredients of tobacco as they exist in cigarette smoke.

By adding only those natural ingredients of extreme high quality as flavor contributors, yet low tar producing as well, they were able to pack MERIT with 'Enriched Flavor'—without the usual corresponding increase in tar.

'Enriched Flavor.' It's extra flavor. Natural flavor. Flavor that can't burn out, can't drop out, can't do anything but come through for you.

Read the taste-test results for yourself.

Taste-Tested By People Like You

9 mg. tar MERIT was taste-tested against five current leading low tar brands ranging from 11 mg. to 15 mg. tar.

Thousands of filter smokers were involved, smokers like yourself, tested at home*.

The results were conclusive.

Even if the cigarette tested had 60% more tar than MERIT, a significant majority of all smokers tested reported new 'Enriched Flavor' MERIT delivered more taste.

Repeat: delivered more taste.

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, 9 mg. tar MERIT MENTHOL performed strongly too, delivering as much—or more—taste than the higher tar brands tested.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough. Now you've got the cigarette.

MERIT. Incredible smoking pleasure at one of the lowest tar levels in smoking today—only 9 mg. tar.

Agency: 'Good neighbor'

By JIM CARRAVALLAH
Of The Enterprise-Roman Staff

The Wayne County Road Commission (WCRC) has a message for the residents of the Belleville-Van Buren area.

"We want to be good neighbors," says the road agency's executive director Thomas P. O'Rourke.

Speaking during an exclusive interview with The Belleville Enterprise last week, O'Rourke said the WCRC believes it is the best choice for managing the Willow Run Airport in Van Buren Township despite a recommendation from the Willow Run Task Force to the contrary.

Two weeks ago the task force overwhelmingly voted to back the concept of "local control" for the airport, now owned by the University of Michigan Board of Regents, and recommended to the Michigan State Department of Highways and Transportation that the facility be turned over to the 3-community Willow Run Joint Airport Board.

O'Rourke conceded that the WCRC has eyed the Willow Run facility for some years as a potential air cargo operation.

However, he said the goal is to make the air cargo operation envisioned for the air facility compatible with the surrounding community.

"It's our intention to respond to surrounding citizens, if given the opportunity to operate Willow Run," O'Rourke added. "We wouldn't be adverse to a citizen's advisory committee on the airport."

However, the WCRC flatly rejected a proposal by the task force to negotiate an "owner-operator" set-up with the Willow Run Joint Airport Board as a means to operate the airport.

Under the proposal, the joint airport board would "own" the airport and have final say on its operations, but would utilize the WCRC expertise to operate a functional facility.

The WCRC rejected the proposal at the task force meeting because of the other agency's "veto" power over operational decisions.

Charles Van Deusen assistant managing director of the road agency, said area citizens' should be aware that there are new laws governing the potential operation of Willow Run.

"There's an environmental impact law which requires the operators of the airport, any airport, to assess the environmental impact of their decisions before those decisions are implemented," Van Deusen said. "It means that we have to live within environmental impact guidelines with any of our decisions."

Mitchell Zolik, deputy managing director for the WCRC, and affiliated with Detroit Metropolitan Airport in Romulus since 1946, said that the commission's goal is to provide service to the region within the guidelines structured by the task force.

"If we're going to maximize the capability of Metropolitan Airport to handle passenger traffic, we need an efficient Willow Run operation," he said. "As far as the WCRC is concerned, the scheme presented five years ago on enlarging Willow Run to handle increased air cargo traffic is dead."

"The role of the airport as defined by the task force is adequate and meets our needs."

The task force recommended that the airport be used for general aviation activities (private airplanes) and some air cargo activities, but did not recommend a massive change in the airport operations to the detriment of the surrounding community.

The task force was charged with the job of defining the role of Willow Run with the aid of the Sanford Research Institute and to recommend an operator for the airport to the Michigan State Department of Highways and Transportation.

The state agency then will study the recommendation on the operator and turn its own finding over to the University of Michigan Board of Regents for its consideration.

The U-M has final say over who will own the airport once the board implements its plan to "get out of the airport business."

Zolik said while the WCRC is interested in obtaining control over Willow Run, it is not "engaged in any lobbying" for support.

"We're willing to talk with groups about the role of Willow Run, but we're not going to lobby for support to obtain the airport," Zolik added. "All the people should realize is that Willow Run can benefit the Van Buren Area as well as the entire county, if operated correctly."

"We feel we have the expertise to do a good job."

Wayne wins Romulus Invitational

Abbot, Sandusky earn gold wrestling medals

By TOM MOORADIAN
Sports Editor

That half-point which was the difference between Wayne Memorial winning the Class A state wrestling championship and Adrian finishing runner-up last year came back to haunt Adrian again.

The occasion was Romulus' Tournament of Championships, held Saturday. Wayne won and retained the title by the slim margin - a half-point. Coach Don Haney's Wolfpack had 100½ team points to Adrian's 100. Rounding out the field were: Mt. Clemens (98), Clawson (68½), Romulus (65½), Clintondale (49½) and Fenton (38½).

"We have a team you can be proud of," said Don Haney, Wayne Memorial's head coach. "We were third in the standings going into the finals and the boys came through, winning the tournament with a come-from-behind effort."

Wayne captured two of the 12 gold medals as Andy MacEachern won a hard-fought 2-0 decision from Adrian's Terry Walker to claim the 100-pound class title for Wayne and 147-pounder Doug Cunningham came

Sports

Pittman was forced to settle for a second place when the officials awarded Clawson's John Ball a 12-11 decision in the 114-pound class.

Wayne officials figured Pittman had compiled more points and it took more than a half hour to determine the eventual winner.

Wayne's heavyweight, Kevin Wilson, lost his bid for a gold when Romulus' Ed Abbott cashed in on a 4:36 fall for one of two Romulus first places.

Rick Pittman, Randy's brother, also finished second. He lost to Mt. Clemens' Greg Wortham by a fall in 1:55. Greg was voted the tournament's Most Valuable Wrestler. He had two falls in an elapsed time of 2:43 in the 140-pound class.

Wayne had three third place medalists with Kevin Tracy (107), Tim Clark (126) and Chris Eberhart

(187) and the Wolfpack finished fourth with Cory Bachus (134) and Ed Leverenc (169).

Meanwhile, Romulus had an outstanding individual effort from Lamar Sandusky who won his second major tournament of the season by a 9-0 decision over 107-pounder, Tony Henry of Mt. Clemens.

Coach Vern Logan's team placed third with Dennis Bergmooser (100) and Rick Morrison (119) and had fourth place medals with Safi Williams (167) and Keith Williams (187).

John Wood, the tournament director, was pleased with the over-all attendance and performance of the participants.

"This is a tournament of champs," Wood said. "And everyone conducted themselves as such."

Belleville '5' rips Trenton

Coach Tom Niemi sees Belleville's 86-72 victory over Trenton Friday night "as the turning point of the season."

"It's the best we looked all year," Niemi said, "and we had balance on both ends of the court. I feel we're ready for anyone now."

The victory boosted Belleville's Suburban 8 Conference record to 6-2, which gives the Tigers a cut of second place with Trenton.

However, Belleville still trails undefeated Plymouth Salem by two full games. If the Tigers should win the Feb. 13 rematch at Salem, they would still need help from another league team.

James Thompkins turned in his best performance of his career as he led Belleville to the stunning victory over Trenton. Thompkins drilled in 11 field goals and picked up four free throws for a game high 26 points. He also nailed down 16 rebounds.

"He was just super out there," Niemi said. "He couldn't do anything wrong."

A close ball game for three periods, the Tigers broke it open with a 29-20 scoring edge in the last period. Thompkins had 10 of those points.

The Tigers also cashed in on 11 of 12 from the free throw line in the final eight minutes and made 18 of 20 for the night.

Trenton worked its way to a 16-15 lead in the first period, then Narvell Turner sank eight points to stake the Tigers to a 40-32 halftime lead.

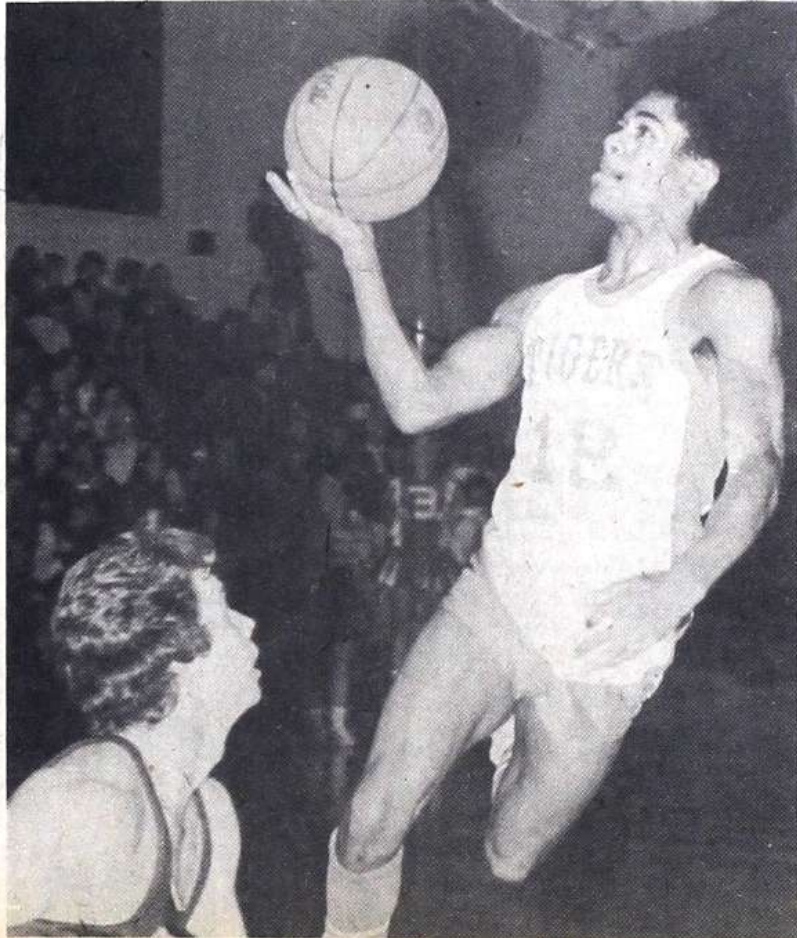

Steve Deller sparked a third period Trenton surge by scoring eight points that enabled the Trojans to catchup at 50-all. Then, Dennis Easley sank the last basket of the period, giving the Tigers the lead for good.

Along with Thompkins, also in double figures were Easley, Narvell Turner and Kevin Barnes. Easley accounted for 21 points, Turner had 16 and Barnes finished with 10, six of those from the free throw line.

The Tigers also hammered the boards and won the duel of rebounds 42-25.

"If we continue to play this way, there won't be many teams we'll have to worry about," Niemi added.

Flying through the air toward Trenton's basket is Belleville guard David Abraham (12) who helped the Tigers avenge an earlier loss to the Trojans, 86-72. Coach Tom Niemi's cagers head for Redford Union on Friday where they will find a much improved team awaiting them. Redford Union gave undefeated Plymouth Salem a scare before losing a 57-46 duel last Friday.

Romulus edges Tigers

Romulus put a dent into Belleville's cage machine as Coach Jesse Meriweather's Eagles won a 73-72 overtime thriller.

"It was a beautiful game," said Meriweather, "especially since we came out the winner."

Romulus outscored its visitors 4-3 in the 3-minute extra period to edge the Suburban 8 Conference representative.

Michael Morrison sank a field goal and Mel Stewart hit the decisive free throw in the overtime to seal the victory for Romulus.

The game turned into a scoring duel between Morrison and Belleville's senior pivotman Dennis Easley. Easley, who scored the basket that sent the game into the extra period, pumped in 15 field goals and a free throw for 31 points.

Morrison had 12 from the field and added eight foul shots for 30.

Belleville jumped out ahead 14-10 in the first period but the Eagle came back on the strength of Morrison's 10 points and Billy Anderson's seven to take over at intermission 33-28.

Belleville outscored their hosts 21-20 and 20-16 in the last two periods to force the issue into overtime.

Three other Romulus players reached double figures. Anderson counted 13 points, Wendall Buckley added 12 while Stewart finished with 10.

Joining Easley in the double figure scoring column were Narvell Turner (22) and James Thompkins (11).

Buyers who want a number of related options such as a cluster of dashboard gauges to replace the usual idiot lights, can often take advantage of bargain packages put together by the manufacturer. This is not gimmickry. It turns out that by selling the options as a group the manufacturer cuts assembly line costs and can pass on significant savings to the customer. Evaluate such packages carefully. Remember that each option can usually be purchased separately, but if you want most of the add-ons in the group, you may be able to save yourself some money.

Tiger grapplers crush Trenton; Belleville now has 4-2 record

Belleville wrestlers picked up the pieces after losing to Allen Park and crushed a highly-touted Trenton contingent 32-19.

The victory lifted Coach Gerald Malecek's Tigers to a 4-2 won-lost record in the Suburban 8 Conference and into the midst of the title race.

If the Tiger grapplers can stop a tough Plymouth Salem lineup tomorrow night, they could possibly salvage a share of the championship. Meanwhile, Belleville captured a gold medal at the annual Garden City Novice Meet. Stan Johnson won a narrow 1-0 decision over Bedford's Dave Salk to claim a first in the 140-pound class.

Belleville placed third with Rick Briggs (187) and had two fourth place medalists, Mark Ford (114) and Brent Verrott (134).

IF YOU HAVE ANY QUESTION ABOUT FOOD
"Ask Bobbie"
CHATHAM'S
FOOD ECONOMIST

CURING THE "BROWN BAG BLUES"

The brown bag lunch is IN. Rising food costs have increased the kinds of people who carry noontime sandwiches in lunch boxes, bags, purses, attache cases and knapsacks.

On the days when your taste buds are begging for the basics, there's nothing like a good peanut butter and jelly sandwich. Of course, it tastes good, but it's also good for you! It supplies proteins, vitamins, minerals, fats and carbohydrates necessary for a balanced diet. For more exotic cravings, included here are some peanut butter-and-jelly-plus sandwiches.

Be adventurous! The pure natural fruit flavor of jams and jellies also complements chicken, turkey, cheese, and deviled ham.

Many of these tasty combinations are economical; all are simple to fix and easy to tote.

*Vary the bread. Try banana nut, date nut, whole wheat, rye, pumpernickle, hard rolls, hamburger buns, frankfurter rolls.

*Pack peanuts, salted sunflower nuts, soynuts, raisins, dried apricots, dates, natural-type cereal.

*Tote bananas, strawberries, grapes, cherries, plums, apples, pears, oranges in season.

*Tuck in vegetables crunchies like red or white radishes, green pepper strips, carrots, celery, raw cauliflower, cucumbers.

*Break away from coffee, tea or soda. Sip hot or cold fruit juices like concord grape, apple, cranberry, or tomato. Or, drink beef, chicken or clam broth.

*Spread jam or jelly between two lightly salted crackers or thin slices of pound cake and wrap individually.

*Swirl your favorite jam into custard, rice pudding or plain yogurt and pack in an insulated container.

Recently we presented a Meat Clinic to a women's club in Troy and we were very pleased with the results. We explained the history of meat, animals, how they were raised and fed and what that means to the consumer. We also explained where the various cuts of meat come from and how to recognize quality in each of the cuts.

We know your group of 75 people (or more) would enjoy a similar program. You can contact our Consumer Affairs Department to request programs by calling 759-4740 or 759-4741. We will need the name of the group, the number of people that will attend, the address of the meeting place and a choice of 2 dates for program if possible.

Our department is available to present other programs on topics such as:

"Fresh is Best!" fresh fruits and vegetables-selection, preparation and care.

"The Wonderful World of Cheese"

"Inflation Fighting Shopping Tips"

"Taking the Mystery Out of Wine" - selection, care, serving tips.

AND MANY MORE

Remember, if you have any questions on food shopping, menus, recipes, tips on nutrition just call me at the phone numbers listed above or write: Bobbie Kelly, Chatham Food Centers, 2300 East Ten Mile, Warren, MI 48091.

Bobbie will be appearing in person to answer your questions at the following store:
